

CONNECTING FAMILIES?
Information & Communication Technologies, generations, and the life course

Edited by Barbara Barbosa Neves and Cláudia Casimiro

First published in Great Britain in 2018 by

Policy Press
University of Bristol
1-9 Old Park Hill
Bristol
BS2 8BB
UK
t: +44 (0)117 954 5940
pp-info@bristol.ac.uk
www.policypress.co.uk

North America office:
Policy Press
c/o The University of Chicago Press
1427 East 60th Street
Chicago, IL 60637, USA
t: +1 773 702 7700
f: +1 773-702-9756
sales@press.uchicago.edu
www.press.uchicago.edu

© Policy Press 2018

British Library Cataloguing in Publication Data
A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data
A catalog record for this book has been requested

ISBN 978-1-4473-3994-6 hardcover
ISBN 978-1-4473-3996-0 ePub
ISBN 978-1-4473-3997-7 Mobi
ISBN 978-1-4473-3995-3 epub

The right of Barbara Barbosa Neves and Cláudia Casimiro to be identified as editors of this work has been asserted by them in accordance with the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988.

All rights reserved: no part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording, or otherwise without the prior permission of Policy Press.

The statements and opinions contained within this publication are solely those of the editors and contributors and not of the University of Bristol or Policy Press. The University of Bristol and Policy Press disclaim responsibility for any injury to persons or property resulting from any material published in this publication.

Policy Press works to counter discrimination on grounds of gender, race, disability, age and sexuality.

Cover design by Robin Hawes Front cover image: 123RF
Printed and bound in Great Britain by CPI Group (UK) Ltd, Croydon, CR0 4YY
Policy Press uses environmentally responsible print partners

Contents

List of figures and tables	v
Notes on contributors	vi
Acknowledgements	xiv
Foreword: The family has become a network Barry Wellman	xv one Connecting families? An introduction Barbara Barbosa Neves and Cláudia Casimiro	1
Part I Theoretical and methodological approaches	19
two Theoretical perspectives on technology and society: implications for understanding the relationship between ICTs and family life Natasha Mauthner and Karolina Kazimierczak	21 three Recursive approaches to technology adoption, families, and the life course: actor network theory and strong structuration theory Geoffrey Mead and Barbara Barbosa Neves	41
four Weaving family connections on- and offline: the turn to networked individualism Anabel Quan-Haase, Hua Wang, Barry Wellman, and Renwen Zhang	59
five Oversharing in the time of selfies: an aesthetics of disappearance? Amanda du Preez	81
six The application of digital methods in a life course approach to family studies Alexia Maddox	97
seven Cross-disciplinary research methods to study technology use, family, and life course dynamics: lessons from an action research project on social isolation and loneliness in later life Barbara Barbosa Neves, Ron Baecker, Diana Carvalho, and Alexandra Sanders	113
eight From object to instrument: technologies as tools for family relations and family research Cláudia Casimiro and Magda Nico	133

Part II Empirical approaches	157
nine Use of communication technology to maintain intergenerational contact: toward an understanding of 'digital solidarity' Siyun Peng, Merrill Silverstein, J. Jill Sutor, Megan Gilligan, Woosang Hwang, Sangbo Nam, and Brianna Routh	159
ten Careful families and care as 'kinwork': an intergenerational study of families and digital media use in Melbourne, Australia Jolynna Sinanan and Larissa Hjorth	181
eleven Floating narratives: transnational families and digital storytelling Catalina Arango Patiño	201
twelve Rescue chains and care talk among immigrants and their left-behind parents Sondra Cuban	219
thirteen 'Wherever you go, wherever you are, I am with you ... connected with my mobile': the use of mobile text messages for the maintenance of family and romantic relations Bernadette Kneidinger-Müller	237
fourteen Permeability of work-family borders: effects of information and communication technologies on work-family conflict at the childcare stage in Japan Yuka Sakamoto	255
Afterword: Digital connections and family practices Elizabeth B. Silva	273